- (2) However—
 - (a) the court is to do so subject to and in accordance with rules of court (if any) made for the purpose of subsection (1),

(c) after subsection (1) there is inserted—

“(1A) A court may not make an order for periodical payments unless it is satisfied that the continuity of payment under the order is reasonably secure.

(1B) When a court makes an order for periodical payments, it must state why it is satisfied that the continuity of payment under the order is reasonably secure.”,

Status: This is the original version (as it was originally enacted).

“2C Secure continuity of periodical payments

- (1) For the purpose of section 2(1A), a court is to assume that the continuity of payment under an order is reasonably secure if—
 - (a) the right to receive the payments would be protected by—
 - (i) a guarantee under section 6 or Schedule 1, or
 - (ii) a scheme under section 213 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (whether or not as modified by section 4 of this Act), or

 - (c) enabling an application to be made to the court for variation of provision included in the order under paragraph (a) or (b).
- (3) Despite inclusion in an order for periodical payments of provision of the kind mentioned in subsection (2)(a), the payments may be made by a different method if under the different method—
 - (a) the right to receive the payments is protected in one of the ways mentioned in subsection (1)(a), or
 - (b) the source of payment is a recognised body or office-holder listed in subsection (6).
- (4) The court may vary the order in respect of provision of the kind mentioned in subsection (2)(a) or (b) but only if—
 - (a) an application is made to the court in accordance with provision included in the order under subsection (2)(c), and
 - (b) the court is satisfied that the continuity of payment under the order is still reasonably secure (with subsection (1) to be used for this too).
- (5) As regards cases involving future pecuniary loss, subsection (4)(a) does not prevent variation of the order under section 2F(2)(a)(v) (which is about method of payment).
- (6) This is the list of who is a recognised body or office-holder as referred to in subsections (1)(b) and (3)(b)—
 - (a) a part of the Scottish Administration,

- (3) Provision deemed by subsection (1)(a) and (b) to be incorporated in an order may be modified by the court which makes the order.
- (4) Provision deemed by subsection (1)(b) to be incorporated in an order may be replaced by the court which makes the order, by including provision in the order—
- (a) for the alternative basis of alteration that is to apply in the case, or
 - (b) for there to be no alteration in the case.
- (5) Provision of the kind mentioned in subsection (4)(a) may specify different bases for different circumstances.
- (6) The statutory basis of alteration as mentioned in subsection (1)(b) is alteration by reference to, whether indicating an upward or downward trend—

 - (b) suspension of the right to receive payments under the order in accordance with section 2G.
- (2) A court may include provision of the kind described in subsection (1) in an order only if it is satisfied that—
 - (a) there is a chance of a change in the pursuer’s physical or mental condition occurring at some definite or indefinite point in the future, and
 - (b) should the change occur, the pursuer would be significantly over- or under-compensated by the damages being awarded for future pecuniary loss.
- (3) In an order including provision of the kind described in subsection (1), a court—
 - (a) must specify the sort of change in the pursuer’s physical or mental condition which must occur before an application may be made for—
 - (i) variation of the order, or
 - (ii) suspension of the right to receive payments under the order, and
 - (b) may specify a period within which any such application must be made (either generally or in respect of a specified sort of change in the pursuer’s condition).

 - (ii) as a result of the change, the damages awarded for future pecuniary loss will significantly over- or under-compensate the injured person unless the order is varied.
- (4) The court may vary the order only if it is satisfied that the continuity of payment under the order is still reasonably secure (with section 2C(1) to be used for this too).
- (5) Ordinarily, the court may not vary the order—
- (a) where a period within which an application for variation may be made is specified in the order, on an application made outwith that period,
 - (b) more than once in respect of each sort of change specified in the order in accordance with section 2E(3)(a).
- (6) But the court may—

- (3) Where a period within which an application for suspension may be made is specified in the order, ordinarily the court may not suspend the right to receive the payments on an application made outwith that period.
- (4) But the court may—
