EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

Under these Regulations an employee will no longer be entitled to count the money value to him of a car provided for his use by his employing authority as part of his pensionable remuneration. If employees provided with a car by their employing authorities at the date these Regulations come into force are contributing to their pension fund by reference to the money value of a car provided for them, the Regulations provide that such a person's pensionable remuneration will not be reduced until either he ceases to be provided with a car by his employing authority or he leaves his employment with that authority, whichever event occurs first. Appeals against decisions taken before these Regulations come into force will be determined on the basis of the Regulations in force at the time the decision was taken.
