EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations are made under section 172 of the Pensions Act 1995. Section 172 deals with the circumstance where an individual who was eligible to be an active member of a public service pension scheme under the Superannuation Act 1972 has instead opted to join a personal pension scheme. It enables the Secretary of State, in prescribed circumstances, to provide certain information relating to that individual to prescribed persons. The information concerned is information relevant to determining if the individual has suffered loss actionable under section 62 of the Financial Services Act 1986 and determining what payment would need to be made to the public service pension scheme to restore his position there. Section 172 also empowers the Secretary of State to impose reasonable fees in respect of administrative expenses incurred in providing that information.

In addition, section 172 enables the Secretary of State, where such an individual is admitted or re-admitted to a public service pension scheme or a payment is made to restore his position there, to impose on prescribed persons reasonable fees in respect of administrative expenses in connection with that transaction.

In relation to a local government pension scheme (which consists of funds administered by certain local authorities) the information is to be provided, and reasonable fees may be imposed, by prescribed persons instead of by the Secretary of State.

The Regulations prescribe the various matters which require to be prescribed under section 172 in the cases of the local government, teachers' and National Health Service pension schemes in Scotland.

Regulation 3 prescribes that the person responsible for providing information and charging fees in the case of the local government scheme is an administering authority under the Local Government Superannuation (Scotland) Regulations 1987.

Regulation 4 prescribes that the circumstances where information may be given are where the individual to whom the information relates has made a written request for, or consented in writing to, the provision of the information.

Regulation 5 prescribes the persons to whom the information may be given and who may be required to pay reasonable fees in respect of the administrative expenses incurred in providing the information.

Regulation 6 prescribes the persons who may be required to pay reasonable fees in respect of administrative expenses incurred in connection with an individual's admission or readmission to a scheme or in connection with any payment made to the scheme to restore his position there.

A copy of the compliance cost assessment prepared in respect of these Regulations can be obtained from the Scottish Office Pensions Agency, Branch 1, St Margaret's House, 151 London Road, Edinburgh EH8 7TG. A copy has been placed in the library of each House of Parliament.
