

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM TO
THE BUCKINGHAMSHIRE (ELECTORAL CHANGES) ORDER 2012

2012 No. Draft

1. This explanatory memorandum has been prepared by the Local Government Boundary Commission for England (the Commission) and is laid before Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.

2. Purpose of the instrument

2.1. The Order provides for new county electoral division and numbers of county councillors for the county of Buckinghamshire at the county elections in 2013 and thereafter. The Order also provides for new parish wards and numbers of parish councillors at the parish elections in 2015 and thereafter wherever this is necessary because a parish is to be split between new county electoral divisions.

3. Matters of special interest to the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments

3.1. None.

4. Legislative context

4.1. The Commission has power under section 59 of the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 (the 2009 Act) to make an order giving effect to recommendations contained in a report prepared, under section 58(4) of that Act, after conducting an electoral review under section 56 (1) of that Act. This instrument is being made to give effect to the Commission's recommendations for new electoral arrangements set out in its report prepared following an electoral review of the county of Buckinghamshire.

4.2. This instrument is one of a group of three similar ones laid before Parliament together. The others are the Durham (Electoral Changes) Order 2012 and the Hart (Electoral Changes) Order 2012.

5. Territorial extent and application

5.1. This instrument applies to England.

6. European Convention on Human Rights

6.1. As the instrument is subject to the negative resolution procedure and does not amend primary legislation, no statement is required.

7. Policy background

- What is being done and why

7.1. The purpose of an electoral review is to decide on the appropriate electoral arrangements including the number of councillors and the names, number and boundaries of wards or divisions for a specific local authority. The Commission began the electoral review of Buckinghamshire on 12 October 2010. The Commission decided to carry out the review as, based on the December 2009 electorate figures, 30% of divisions in the county have electoral variances over 10% from the average. Most notably, the existing Aylesbury West division has 21% more electors per councillor than the county average.

7.2. An electoral review aims to ensure that the number of electors represented by each county or district councillor is as close to equal as possible, but the recommendations must also have regard to community identities and interests and the need for effective and convenient local government. To achieve these aims, the Commission tries to ensure that the number of electors per councillor in every ward or division is as close as possible to the average for the authority, but is happy to show flexibility in moving away from the average based on the evidence provided during the consultation stages of the review. Following a four-stage review process the Commission published its “Final recommendations on the electoral arrangements for Buckinghamshire County Council”¹ on 17 January 2012.

7.3. The Order provides for changes to the electoral arrangements for the county of Buckinghamshire at the county elections in 2013 as recommended by Commission. The existing divisions of the county will be replaced by 49 new ones. Each division will return one councillor. The Commission considered that the evidence received justified two divisions having variances predicted to vary by more than 10% from the authority average by 2017.

7.4. Under section 56 of the 2009 Act, whenever the Commission recommends changes to the electoral arrangements of a county council it must also recommend whether, in consequence of those changes, any changes should be made to the electoral arrangements of any parish council that is within that county. Among other things, under Schedule 2 to that Act, recommendations must ensure that no parish ward is split between new county electoral divisions and under section 56 of that Act, recommendations must be made regarding the number of parish councillors for each parish ward.

7.5. Consequently, in addition to making changes to the electoral arrangements for the county the Order also, where necessary, makes provision with respect to the establishment of new parish wards and sets the number of parish councillors for each of those parish wards.

7.6. The Order does not amend or revoke any legislation.

8. Consultation outcome

- 8.1. The Order gives effect to recommendations that were consulted on during the Commission's review of electoral arrangements from October 2010 until January 2012. There was an initial 6-week consultation, during which the Commission asked for proposals on the most appropriate number of councillors for the county followed by a 12-week consultation on the most appropriate division boundaries for the county. Having considered the submissions received, the Commission published its "Draft recommendations on the new electoral arrangements for Buckinghamshire County Council"² on 19 July 2011. Following a further 12-week consultation on the draft recommendations the Commission considered further evidence received during the consultation and published its final recommendations.
- 8.2. In total, 77 representations were received during the consultation stages of the review. In response to the consultation on council size, Buckinghamshire County Council proposed a council size of 49 members, a reduction of eight from the current council size of 57 members. The Commission considered that the Council's proposal provided a comprehensive rationale for a council size of 49 and that this council size would ensure effective and convenient local government for the county. The County Council also requested that the Commission undertake this review with a presumption towards having only single-member divisions in the county.
- 8.3. Following the consultation on division patterns, some opposition was received to the proposals for divisions in Chesham town, and the proposed divisions around the parish of Farnham Royal. The Commission considered a variety of possible options and division patterns for these areas, and concluded that the ones put forward in its draft recommendations, and subsequently its final recommendations, would be the best ones to meet its statutory criteria.
- 8.4. A detailed analysis of the outcome of the consultation is set out in the report "Final recommendations on the electoral arrangements for Buckinghamshire County Council" which is available at <http://www.lgbce.org.uk/all-reviews/south-east/buckinghamshire/buckinghamshire-county-council-fer>

9. Guidance

- 9.1. The Commission does not intend to issue any guidance alongside this instrument. This is not considered necessary as the Order is self-explanatory and gives effect to recommendations following consultation with interested parties as to the changes to electoral arrangements.

- 9.2. Once the Order has been made, the Commission will publish a press release and distribute it to local media advising that new electoral arrangements will be implemented at the next local elections. The press release will also direct interested parties to the Commission's website where the final recommendations will be available in detail.

10. Impact

- 10.1. No impact assessment has been prepared because no impact on the private sector or the voluntary sector is foreseen.
- 10.2. The impact on the public sector will be limited to the area for which the Order makes provision. The one-off cost of producing the map referred to by the instrument is to be funded by the Commission. The one-off cost of amending the electoral register to reflect the new county electoral divisions and parish wards is to be funded by Buckinghamshire County Council.

11. Regulating small business

- 11.1. The Order does not apply to small business.

12. Monitoring and review

- 12.1. The Commission will have no role in monitoring Buckinghamshire County Council's implementation of the Buckinghamshire (Electoral Changes) Order 2012. The Commission is not required to undertake such monitoring; that is a matter for the relevant officers of Buckinghamshire County Council.
- 12.2. The Order will be reviewed insofar as the Commission continually monitors local authorities in England to identify any that meet its criteria for electoral reviews.

13. Contact

- 13.1. Marcus Bowell at the Commission (Tel: 0207 664 8530 or email: marcus.bowell@lgbce.org.uk) can answer any queries regarding the instrument.
