

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM TO
THE TEACHERS' PENSION SCHEME (CONSEQUENTIAL PROVISIONS)
REGULATIONS 2015

2015 No. XXXX

1. This explanatory memorandum has been prepared by HM Treasury and the Department for Education and is laid before Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.

2. Purpose of the Instruments

The Teachers' Pension Scheme (Consequential Provisions) Regulations 2015 ("the Regulations") make consequential provision in relation to the new public service pension scheme under the Public Service Pensions Act 2013 (c.25). They modify the effect of other statutory provisions in their application to teachers' pension schemes.

3. Matters of special interest to the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments

The Regulations make modifications to provisions in primary legislation.

4. Legislative Context

4.1 The Regulations implement reforms to public service pension schemes under the Public Service Pensions Act 2013 ("the 2013 Act").

4.2 The 2013 Act was enacted in response to the recommendations of the Independent Public Service Pensions Commission led by Lord Hutton of Furness. The Commission reported on 10 March 2011. Under the 2013 Act, new pension schemes ("new schemes") are being established for persons in public service, by regulations ("scheme regulations") made under section 1.

4.3 Scheme regulations have been made to establish pension schemes for teachers in England and Wales: the Teachers' Pension Scheme Regulations 2014 (S.I. 2014/512), amended by the Teachers' Pension Scheme (Amendment) Regulations 2014 (S.I. 2014/2652), both of which come into force on 1st April 2015.

4.4 This instrument is being laid with the Armed Forces Pension (Consequential Provisions) Regulations 2015, the Police Pensions (Consequential Provisions) Regulations 2015, the Public Service (Civil Servants and Others) Pensions (Consequential and Amendment) Regulations 2015, the Firefighters' Pension Scheme (England) (Consequential Provisions) Regulations 2015, and the National Health Service Pension Scheme (Consequential Provisions) Regulations 2015.

5. Territorial Extent and Application

The Regulations extend to England and Wales.

6. European Convention on Human Rights

David Laws at the Department for Education has made the following statement regarding human rights:

In my view the provisions of the Regulations are compatible with the Convention Rights.

7. Policy background

What is being done and why

Certification provisions for contracting-out

7.1 Some employers choose to set up company pension schemes to provide a pension which replaces all, or part, of the additional State Pension provided the scheme meets minimum standards known as the Reference Scheme Test. This is known as “contracting-out” of the additional State Pension. Individuals who are members of a contracted-out scheme and their employers pay lower National Insurance contributions. This arrangement is known as the National Insurance rebate. The Government intends that the new schemes, like the existing schemes, should be contracted-out of the additional State Pension, until contracting-out ends in April 2016. Part 2 of the Regulations deals with contracting-out under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 (c.48) (“the 1993 Act”) for the period from 1st April 2015 to the 5th April 2016, inclusive. Certain procedural requirements are disapplied that would otherwise apply by virtue of the Occupational Pension Schemes (Contracting-out) Regulations 1996 (S.I. 1996/1172): for example, formal notices to earners. New schemes must still meet the requirements in section 9 of the 1993 Act: in particular, they must satisfy the Reference Scheme Test.

Provisions about pensionable service and early leavers

7.2 The effect of the 2013 Act and scheme regulations is that existing schemes must close, and current members (except for specific protected groups) transfer into new schemes. However, these transferring members will retain certain benefits in their existing scheme (described in the Regulations as their “old scheme”). Although they will accrue new benefits in the new scheme only, the member will, strictly speaking, belong to both schemes at once. In certain cases such a member will have a “final salary link” (see Schedule 7 to the 2013 Act) which means that the final salary in their new scheme will be used to determine their final salary for the purposes of their old scheme.

7.3 Part 3 of the Regulations reflects the policy intention that those with ongoing service in an old scheme and a new scheme should generally (subject to certain conditions) be treated as if they remained active members for particular purposes or in “pensionable service” for their old schemes until their pensionable service in their new scheme is terminated. The objective is to prevent them from becoming deferred members and triggering rights that are inconsistent with them remaining in service with the same employer in a successor pension scheme.

7.4 The 1993 Act contains provisions about occupational pension schemes – not only public service schemes – including as to their contracting-out of the additional State Pension (see Part 3 of the 1993 Act); and as to members who leave their scheme before retirement age (“early leavers”) (Part 4 of the 1993 Act).

7.5 For the purposes of the 2013 Act and scheme regulations, a number of those provisions need to be modified in relation to a member of an old scheme who transfers to a new scheme. The modifications described below (paragraphs 7.6 to 7.12) affect only this category of members, and not those who remain fully active members of an old scheme (primarily, those near to normal pension age at the time of the reforms). It does not affect those who have become fully deferred members of the old scheme, nor brand new members who join the new scheme on or after 1 April 2015.

7.6 One reference to “pensionable service” in Part 3 of the 1993 Act, which concerns certification requirements for contracted-out pension schemes, is modified so that the person is treated as having a single period of pensionable service in one scheme.

7.7 There are further provisions in Part 4 of the 1993 Act, which concerns the rights of early leavers. Chapter 1 provides for preservation of benefits and sets out the principle of short service benefit for those persons. The Regulations provide that a person will not have access to short service benefit until pensionable service terminates in the new scheme, rather than when the person transfers into the new scheme. Certain provisions will apply as though the old scheme and the new scheme were a single scheme.

7.8 Chapter 2 of Part 4 concerns the revaluation of a person’s benefits during the period between the person leaving their occupational scheme and reaching normal pension age. The requirements of that Chapter should not apply to someone’s old scheme benefits when the person transfers into the new scheme but remains in service. Instead, the amount of their old scheme benefits will be determined in accordance with the scheme rules and the member's final salary in the new scheme. The Regulations provide that old scheme benefits are not to be revalued under Chapter 2 while the person remains in pensionable service in the new scheme. This is to ensure that their old scheme benefits are not effectively revalued twice.

7.9 Chapter 3 of Part 4 concerns "anti-franking", or the protection of increases in guaranteed minimum pensions ("GMPs") which contracted-out schemes had to provide until 1997. For this purpose, the Regulations provide that the "cessation date" when a person ceases to be in contracted-out employment under the old scheme (and from which point GMPs may need to be increased) is treated as the date when the person leaves their new scheme, and not the date when they transfer from the old scheme to the new scheme. The Regulations include a subsequent modification of the definition of "cessation date" in section 87 of the 1993 Act, which will take effect when that definition is amended by the Pensions Act 2014 (c.19) as part of the abolition of contracting-out.

7.10 Chapter 4 of Part 4 concerns cash equivalent transfers for early leavers. The Regulations provide that a person will not acquire the statutory right to a cash equivalent under the old scheme until pensionable service terminates in the new scheme, rather than when the person transfers into the new scheme.

7.11 There are also modifications to the Occupational Pension Schemes (Transfer Values) Regulations 1996 (S.I. 1996/1847) which were made under that Chapter, to enable scheme managers in certain circumstances to delay transfers of preserved benefits until the transition member has left new scheme employment. This is designed to restrict transfers out (from either scheme) by a person who has voluntarily opted out of membership of the new scheme, but remains in employment.

7.12 Chapter 5 of Part 4 concerns cash transfer sums or contribution refunds for those who leave a scheme after 3 months but within 2 years or before their rights have vested. The Regulations provide that a person will not acquire rights under Chapter 5 until pensionable service terminates in the new scheme, rather than when the person transfers into the new scheme. The statutory time periods are also measured as though the person had one continuous period of service.

Ill-health benefits

7.13 The Government has chosen to adopt a 'single source model' for the payment of ill-health pensions in the new schemes. Under the single source model, all payments of ill-health pension will be made from the new pension scheme during the period between retirement and the scheme member reaching normal pension age in the old scheme. This model delivers certainty over the ill-health pensions that are payable to members with service in both schemes, and prevents the administrative difficulty of performing two parallel ill-health calculations.

7.14 Accordingly, the pension payable to the scheme member from the new scheme will contain 3 elements:

- (1) An element in respect of the unenhanced ill-health pension entitlement in respect of service in the old scheme;
- (2) A pension in respect of service in the new scheme; and
- (3) In the case of total incapacity pensions, an uplift.

7.15 When the person receiving an ill-health pension from the new scheme reaches their normal pension age in the old scheme, then the first element will cease to be paid out of the new scheme and the element in respect of the unenhanced ill-health pension entitlement under their old scheme pension will come into payment from the old scheme. They will see no difference in the amount that they receive.

7.16 Part 4 of the Regulations modifies the tax regime in order to correct some unintended consequences.

7.17 Under the current legislation, element (1) would count as an increase in the value of the pension over the pension input period. If that increase meant that the amount of the annual allowance for the pension input period was exceeded, then a tax charge would arise. Regulation 15 modifies the application of the current legislation to remove element (1) from the calculation of the pension input period during the pension input period in which the member takes ill-health retirement.

7.18 Under the current legislation, the initial value of the ill-health pension – elements (1), (2), and in cases of serious ill-health, (3) – would be measured against the lifetime allowance. However, when the member taking ill-health retirement reaches the normal pension age under the new scheme, the current legislation would measure the element in respect of the unenhanced ill-health pension entitlement from the old scheme coming into payment against the member's remaining lifetime allowance, notwithstanding that element (1) will cease to be paid from the new scheme. If that second measurement results in the total amount of pension exceeding the lifetime allowance, then a tax charge will arise. Regulation 14 modifies the application of the current legislation to ensure that the payment of the element in respect of the unenhanced ill-health pension entitlement paid from the old scheme will not count against the lifetime allowance.

7.19 Accordingly, regulations 14 and 15 operate so that a member will not suffer any unexpected tax consequences as a result of the way the Government has chosen to structure the ill-health provisions of the new scheme.

The Teachers' Pension Scheme Regulations 2014 and short service benefits

7.20 Part 5 of the Regulations concerns early retirement benefits and short service benefits.

7.21 That Part resolves a conflict between the short service benefit provisions in Chapter 1 of Part 4 of the 1993 Act and the arrangements for adjusting benefits where a teacher leaves service early and draws benefits on an actuarially adjusted basis, which have been set in accordance with section 3 of the 2013 Act. Under the Teachers' Pension Scheme Regulations 2014, the early retirement adjustment for a member who applies for benefits whilst an active member is different to the adjustment for a member who applies whilst out of service.

7.22 The short service benefit provisions in the 1993 Act operate to ensure that the benefits of a deferred member (short service benefits) are calculated in the same way as the equivalent benefits held by an active member (long service benefits).

7.23 However, section 3 of the 2013 Act enables the setting of different provisions for different purposes or cases (including different provisions for different descriptions of persons). Under those provisions the Government has decided, following discussions and consultation with stakeholders, that benefits should be reduced at different rates for active and deferred members of the Teachers' Pension Scheme where they have a normal pension age of over 65 and retire on actuarially adjusted terms.

7.24 The Government is clear, and stakeholders agree, that the additional flexibility to leave early with a smaller reduction in pension should only apply to those in active service, as it will assist them to better manage the end of their careers, for example, giving them more scope to decide when is the right time for them to leave pensionable service. A deferred member has already left pensionable service and is therefore unlikely to need any additional scope to manage when they cease teaching.

7.25 Regulation 16 resolves this conflict by ensuring that the difference in the calculation of actuarial adjustments to early payment of benefits for deferred members and active members under section 3 of the 2013 Act does not breach the short service benefit provisions in the 1993 Act.

Consolidation

7.26 There are no plans to consolidate these Regulations.

8. Consultation

8.1 The Department for Education conducted a consultation exercise on the draft Teachers' Pension Scheme (Consequential Provisions) Regulations. The consultation ran for three weeks from 6 to 27 November 2014 and was sent to Teachers' Pension Scheme consultees as well as being published on the Teachers' Pensions section of the Gov.uk website. Just two responses were received, from head teacher unions ASCL and NAHT, who indicated that they accepted the need for the changes. ASCL in particular welcomed the additional clarity that they will provide in terms of how the final salary and career average arrangements will work alongside over-riding legislation.

8.2 The regulations covered by the consultation make technical changes to over-riding pension legislation to ensure that it and the reformed TPS work appropriately together. There is no change to the arrangements already put in place for the reformed TPS, which have been the subject of previous consultations and are set out in regulations already made. The low response rate was not unexpected as these regulations are technical in nature and do not, as set out above, change the mechanics of the reformed TPS.

8.3 Similar modifying regulations are being made by five other public service schemes, and HM Treasury are co-ordinating the overall process of drawing up and laying the various sets of regulations involved – which will be subject to the affirmative process in the House as they modify primary legislation.
