

Oxford University Act 1862

1862 CHAPTER 26 25 and 26 Vict

1 Power to University to make regulations as to professorships named in schedule.

The University of Oxford may make statutes for the regulation of the professorships specified in the schedule annexed hereto in respect of the following matters; that is to say:—

- (1) The functions and duties of each of the professors holding the said professorships:
- (2) The fees, if any, to be charged for admittance to the lectures of each professor:
- (3) The determination of the periods during which each professor is to reside in the University; the authority in whom a power of granting leave of absence is to be vested; and the mode of enforcing the required residence:
- (4) The appointment of a temporary substitute for each professor in case of his illness or temporary absence with leave, and of a permanent substitute in case of his being permanently incapacitated by old age or infirmity:
- (5) The remuneration of any such temporary or permanent substitute out of the income of the professor in whose place he is substituted:
- (6) The constitution of a court or other authority empowered to admonish and, if necessary, remove a professor guilty of notable negligence or inefficiency in conducting the duties of his office, or of immorality.

2 Power of University as to professorships in schedule.

The University may by statute determine in respect of each of the professorships specified in the said schedule (other than the Professorship of Political Economy and the Sherard Professorship of Botany) how and by whom upon the occasion of the next or any subsequent avoidance of such professorship the professor is to be elected; and in the case of the Sherard Professorship of Botany therein named, the professor shall be appointed by the President and Council for the time being of the Royal College of Physicians of London; and the said University may, with the consent of the said President and Council of the College of Physicians, vary and define the qualifications of candidates for election to the said Sherard Professorship.

3 Suppression of certain professorships.

If at any time hereafter a new professorship of political economy, chemistry, geology or mineralogy is established in the University of Oxford, it shall be lawful for the University by statute to suppress the existing professorship of that science for which provision is made by a new professorship; and after the suppression of any professorship authorized to be suppressed by this section, the annual sum now payable by the University as a salary to the professor holding the suppressed professorship shall be applied in promoting and assisting, by the purchase of materials or apparatus, by the support of assistant teachers, or by such other means as the University may by statute determine, the study and cultivation in the University of the science which forms the subject matter of the suppressed professorship: Provided, that if the Professorship of Mineralogy is suppressed, the annual sum thereby rendered disposable may, if it be thought fit, be applied in manner aforesaid to the promotion of the study of geology or any branch thereof; and if the Professorship of Geology be suppressed, the annual sum may, if it be thought fit, be applied to the promotion of the study of mineralogy or any branch thereof.

4 Extension of power of suppressing professorships.

The power hereby given to the University of suppressing any of the said Professorships of Political Economy, Chemistry, Geology, or Mineralogy may be exercised although the new professorship substituted for any suppressed professorship is a professorship attached to a college, and established under a statute of such college now in force, if the functions and duties of such new professorship are subject to regulation by the University, and are not confined to the instruction of members of the college.

5 Conditions may be annexed to certain professorships.

The election or appointment of any person who may be hereafter elected or appointed to any of the said Professorships of Political Economy, Chemistry, Geology, and Mineralogy may if it be thought fit, be declared by statute of the University to be subject to the operation of any statute for the suppression of the professorship that may afterwards be made or come into operation.

6 Variation of the trusts of certain scholarships.

The University may vary by statute the directions, trusts, or regulations relating to the Kennicott Scholarships, and to the Johnson Scholarships, and to the Denyer Theological Prizes, with a view of promoting the study of theology, Hebrew, and mathematics respectively, and may for that purpose, if it be deemed advisable, convert the Denyer Theological Prize into a theological scholarship or scholarships.

7 Approbation of statutes by Her Majesty in Council.

Every statute passed by the University by virtue of this Act shall with all convenient speed after the passing thereof be laid before Her Majesty in Council, and forthwith published in the London Gazette; and any person or body corporate affected thereby may within a month after the publication thereof petition Her Majesty in Council against the same or any part thereof; and every such petition shall be referred by Her Majesty by Order in Council for the consideration and advice of five members of her Privy Council, of whom two ^{F1}... shall be members of the Judicial Committee; and
