EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations.)

Under section 20 of the Finance Act 1985, a person becomes entitled to a repayment supplement where the Commissioners have not remitted a payment of tax owing to him within 30 days of its becoming due. These Regulations replace the Value Added Tax (Repayment Supplement) Regulations 1986, which are revoked. They provide for 4 specific sets of circumstances in which the above 30 day period is to be treated as extended and prescribe the rules that are to apply for the purpose of determining the duration of such extensions. These rules, which have been revised, are now based on objective criteria to establish the dates to which they relate rather than on dates recorded by the Commissioners.
