EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

This Order brings into force the Foreign Marriage (Amendment) Act 1988 on 12th April 1990.

The Act amends the Foreign Marriage Act 1892 (2), which validates certain marriages abroad where at least one of the parties is a British subject. It limits the application of the 1892 Act to cases where at least one of the parties is a United Kingdom national, taking into account the wider meaning of the term “British subject” in the British Nationality Act 1981 (c. 61). It removes the provision in section 4 of the 1892 Act that the requirements of English law as to consent shall apply in the case of parties domiciled in Scotland and Northern Ireland. It removes the express reference to the rites of the Church of England in section 8(2) and (3) of the 1892 Act. It makes minor amendments relating to registration of marriages to which the 1892 Act applies, and extends the scope of section 22 of the 1892 Act (validity of marriages solemnised abroad by forces' chaplains) to include marriage of the children of the prescribed categories of personnel. It also provides for the repeal of various obsolete provisions of the 1892 Act and of spent validation Acts.
