(a) 1946 c. 36.

(b) To be distinguished from the Legal Advice and Assistance (Amendment) (No. 3) Regulations 1999 (S.I. 1999/2575), which amend the Legal Advice and Assistance Regulations 1989 (S.I. 1989/340).

(c) 1992 c. 4 as amended by the Tax Credits Act 1999 (c. 10).

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations amend the Legal Aid (Mediation in Family Matters) Regulations 1997, so as to replace references to family credit and disability working allowance with references to working families' tax credit and disabled person's tax credit, following the changes made by the Tax Credits Act 1999. They revoke and replace a previous set of amending Regulations, of which the title was in error stated as "the Legal Advice and Assistance (Amendment) (No. 3) Regulations 1999" in the citation provision and as "the Legal Aid (Mediation in Family Matters) (Amendment) Regulations 1999" in the heading.

A recipient of one of these tax credits will be eligible for mediation (so far as his income is concerned) provided that the amount to be deducted from the weekly maximum allowance does not exceed £70. Those in receipt of family credit or disability working allowance under a decision made before the coming into force of these Regulations will continue to be eligible for mediation.

This Statutory Instrument has been made in consequence of a defect in S.I. 1999/2576, and is being issued free to all known recipients of that Statutory Instrument.
