EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

Following amendments to the Police Act 1996 by the Courts Act 2003, lay justice members replace magistrate members as the third category of member of a police authority (in addition to councillor members and independent members). Lay justice members are appointed by councillor members and independent members from among candidates included on a short-list prepared by a selection panel in accordance with Schedule 3A to the 1996 Act. These Regulations provide for the procedures to be followed in relation to the preparation of such a short-list, and the conduct of the proceedings of the selection panel.

Regulation 3 requires the clerk to the police authority to notify the panel of a vacancy or impending vacancy for lay justice members. Regulation 4 provides for the selection panel to issue a notice advertising such a vacancy. Regulation 5 provides for the content of applications from lay justices wishing to be considered for inclusion on short-list. Regulation 6 requires the panel to consider such applications and provides for majority voting and for decisions to be taken when only two members of a panel are present. Regulation 7 requires the panel to make a record of applicants, and regulation 8 allows such a record to be used for the preparation of future short-lists without issuing a notice.
