Status: This is the original version (as it was originally made). This item of legislation is currently only available in its original format.

PART 1

GENERAL CONDITIONS OF ENLISTMENT

1. Your engagement as stated below will consist of a period of service with the air force followed, normally, by a period of service in the reserve. Air force service means full-time regular service during which you may be called upon to serve in any part of the world. When your air force service ends, you return to civilian life, but you may retain a liability to reserve service or recall (see paragraphs 20-24). However, irrespective of the type of engagement on which you are serving, Her Majesty and the air force authorities have the right to discharge you at any time if your services are no longer required.

TERMS OF ENLISTMENT

2. You will be enlisted to serve in the regular air force on a * NOTICE ENGAGEMENT / * FIXED ENGAGEMENT / * OPEN ENGAGEMENT (* delete if inapplicable) as specified below.

Status: This is the original version (as it was originally made). This item of legislation is currently only available in its original format.

a. NOTICE ENGAGEMENT. A period of air force service beginning with the date of your attestation and ending not later than 9 years thereafter.

If you enlist on a Notice Engagement you have the right (on giving 18 months' notice of your intention to do so) to be transferred to the reserve, but this transfer cannot be effected until you have completed 3 years' air force service from the end of your training.

b. FIXED ENGAGEMENT. A period of air force service beginning with the date of your attestation and ending months/years thereafter ( delete if inapplicable).

c. OPEN ENGAGEMENT (Princess Mary's Royal Air Force Nursing Service only). A period of air force service beginning with the date of your attestation and ending either 22 years thereafter or upon your reaching the age of 55 years, whichever is the earlier.

If you enlist on the Open Engagement you have the right (on giving 12 months' notice of your intention to do so) to be transferred to the reserve, but this transfer cannot be effected until you have completed 4 years' air force service from the date of successful completion of Basic Nurse training.

Note: this is the only engagement available for entrants to PMRAFNS.

RECKONABLE SERVICE

3. Your air force service will be reckonable from the date of your attestation.

ALTERATION OF TERMS OF SERVICE

4. You may be permitted to extend your period of air force service, and to re-engage to complete time for immediate pension on discharge, subject to vacancies, advancement in rank if appropriate, a recommendation by your Commanding Officer and the agreement of the competent air force authorities.

PREMATURE TERMINATION OF SERVICE

AS A RIGHT

5. If this is your first enlistment in the regular air force you have the right to claim your discharge, with no subsequent reserve liability (although you will still be liable to recall as described in paragraph 24 below). You may, subject to your completing 28 days' service excluding leave, claim your discharge at any time before the end of 6 months from the date of your attestation, but you do have to give 14 days' notice to your Commanding Officer. As long as this notice is given before the end of the 6 month period, you will be allowed to leave the Royal Air Force.

6. If you enlist as non-commissioned aircrew, you have the right to be transferred to the reserve after 8 years' total service or after 6 years' productive service, that is service after you have completed initial training at the appropriate Operational Conversion Unit, if this is later. You must give notice in writing of your wish to be transferred to the reserve at least 18 months before your option date, that is the date on which you complete the relevant period of service.

7. If you enlist on a Notice Engagement, you have the right to give 18 months' notice of your intention to transfer to the reserve, but this transfer cannot be effected until you have completed 3 years' air force service from the end of your training.

8. Subject to paragraph 9 below, if the term of your engagement is longer than 9 years, you have the right to be transferred to the reserve before the expiry of your term when you have completed at least 9 years' reckonable air force service. You can only exercise this right by giving notice in writing to your Commanding Officer at least 18 months before the date of transfer. If, when you give notice of your intention to exercise this right, you have completed 20 ½ years' reckonable air force service, you will be discharged with no subsequent reserve liability although you will still be liable to recall as described in paragraph 24.

Status: This is the original version (as it was originally made). This item of legislation is currently only available in its original format.

9. If you enlist on the Open Engagement you have the right (on giving 12 months' notice of your intention to do so) to be transferred to the reserve on or at any time after the expiration of 4 years' air force service from the date of successful completion of Basic Nurse training.

10. Normally your discharge or transfer to the reserve will be effected with all convenient speed. However, if either:

- a. at the time your notice expires, or
- b. at the time you apply, a Queen's Order has been made ordering that airmen and airwomen who would otherwise fall to be discharged or transferred to the reserve shall continue to serve with the air force, your discharge or transfer to the reserve may be deferred for so long as the Queen's Order remains in force. Such an Order would only be made in time of national danger or emergency.

PREMATURE VOLUNTARY RELEASE

11. You may apply for premature voluntary release before you would otherwise be entitled to discharge. You have no legal right to end your service in this way and your application can be refused. Normally you will be subject to the following restrictions (although these can be varied):

- a. If you are serving in a ground trade you must have completed at least 3 years' air force service from the end of your training, or if you are serving in the Princess Mary's Royal Air Force Nursing Service you must have completed at least 4 years' air force service from the completion of Basic Nurse training, or if you are serving as non-commissioned aircrew you must have completed at least 6 years' air force service from the completion of your initial Operational Conversion Course; and
- b. In addition, restrictions may be imposed on you if you have attended a course of training or subsequent Operational Conversion Unit course. The restriction will be for a period starting immediately after completion of the course in question.

Following approval of your application you would, on release from air force service, be transferred to the reserve, unless you have completed 22 years' service, in which case you would be discharged. In either situation you would remain liable to recall (see paragraph 24).

COMPASSIONATE RELEASE

12. If at any time during your air force service there are compelling circumstances which make it essential for you to be released from regular service in the Royal Air Force, you may be allowed to leave and the conditions in paragraph 11 will not apply.

FEMALE ENTRANTS

13. An airwoman who becomes pregnant may, in most cases, be entitled to a period of paid leave. Details are contained in the current Service maternity regulations.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

EMPLOYMENT

14. As soon as you have been attested by the Attesting Officer you will be subject to air force law and you will be required to carry out whatever duties may be ordered by those in authority over you, including (if you are medically fit) duty in the air in any type of aircraft. You may be ordered to serve ashore or afloat, and you may be required to serve in any part of the world.

Status: This is the original version (as it was originally made). This item of legislation is currently only available in its original format.

DISCHARGE AND TRANSFER TO THE RESERVE

15. You may be discharged if you make a false answer to any of the questions set out in Part 2 of this paper or because of other irregularities concerned with your enlistment. You may also be discharged by order of the competent air force authority on other grounds such as misconduct, unfitness on medical grounds or for the benefit of the public service.

16. If you fail basic trade training, you may either be discharged or offered retention in another trade.

17. If you are enlisted in the United Kingdom and you are serving outside the United Kingdom when due to be discharged or transferred to the reserve, you will be entitled to be sent free of cost to the United Kingdom for that purpose. If you are discharged or transferred to the reserve in the United Kingdom, you will be entitled to be conveyed free of cost to the place where you were attested or your intended place of residence.

18. There are certain circumstances under which the date when you have the right to end your air force service can be altered. The date could be delayed because of legal proceedings, thus:

a. If you are found guilty of desertion, you will be liable to forfeit service. This means that the date when your air force service (and therefore your subsequent reserve liability) ends might be deferred.

b. If your period of air force service is coming to an end and you are liable to be proceeded against under Service law or are serving a term of imprisonment or detention outside the United Kingdom, your air force service may be extended until any proceedings or such a term of imprisonment or detention have been completed.

19. Similarly, the date of discharge or transfer to the reserve can be delayed because of outside circumstances. Thus, you may be retained in air force service when you would otherwise be entitled to be discharged or transferred to the reserve if a call-out order under—

a. Section 52 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996 (call-out for national danger, great emergency or attack on the United Kingdom), b. Section 54 of that Act (call-out for warlike operations), or

c. Section 56 of that Act (call-out for other operations), is in force authorising the call out for permanent service of members of the Royal Air Force Reserve. You may also be retained in air force service where a Queen's Order has been made ordering that airmen who would otherwise fall to be discharged or transferred to the reserve shall continue to serve with the air force. Such an order would only be made where it appeared that national danger was imminent or that a great emergency had arisen.

RESERVE SERVICE

20. If you are transferred to the reserve after exercising the rights referred to in paragraphs 6, 7, 8 or 9, you will serve in the reserve for a period starting with the date of your transfer and ending either 6 years later or 22 years after your attestation (whichever is the sooner) or after such shorter period as the competent air force authority may approve.

21. If your term of service includes a period of service in the reserve, you will on completion of your air force service be transferred to the Royal Air Force Reserve and placed in Category 1 or Category 2 according to Service requirements. If you are placed in Category 1 you will be eligible to receive reserve pay and may be required to attend for not more than 16 days' training annually. In addition you may be required to attend for prescribed periods of non-continuous training. If you are placed in Category 2, you will not be eligible to receive reserve pay and will not be required to attend for annual training.

Status: This is the original version (as it was originally made). This item of legislation is currently only available in its original format.

22. As a member of the Royal Air Force Reserve (whether Category 1 or Category 2) you will be liable to be called out for permanent service anywhere in the world in the circumstances and for the period specified below:

a. Her Majesty may make an order authorising the call-out of members of the Royal Air Force Reserve—

(1) If it appears to Her that national danger is imminent or that a great emergency has arisen; or

(2) In the event of an actual or apprehended attack on the United Kingdom.

Where such an order is made, you may be required to serve for a period of 3 years (which may be extended by order to 5 years). 23. If you have been called out on permanent service, you will be entitled to be released on the expiry of your current term of service as a member of the Royal Air Force Reserve; but that entitlement may be postponed for up to 12 months if you are in permanent service under the circumstances described in paragraph 22a or b, or for up to 9 months if you are in permanent service under the circumstances described in paragraph 22c.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations make provision in respect of enlistment of recruits and generally for the carrying into effect of Part 1 of the Air Force Act 1955. They revoke and replace the Air Force Act 1955 (Part 1) Regulations 2001 (as amended), which Regulations were not made by statutory instrument but were amended by statutory instrument in 2003 (S.I. 2003/786). The principal changes are:

Regulation 3(4) enables a Commander-in-Chief specified as the competent air force authority to authorise discharge under Schedule 1 to these Regulations to authorise Commanding Officers not below the rank of Group Captain to act on his behalf as the competent air force authority for the purposes of Schedule 1 to these Regulations.

Regulation 5, Part 1 of Schedule 1 and Part 1 of the form in Schedule 2 reflect changes in nomenclature.

Schedule 2 contains the Royal Air Force Notice Paper to be given to a person offering to enlist in the regular air force in accordance with section 2(1) of the Air Force Act 1955. The Notice Paper reflects changes to Royal Air Force terms of service that will come into force on 1st April 2007 by virtue of the Royal Air Force Terms of Service Regulations 2007. These provide for a new type of engagement with the Princess Mary's Royal Air Force Nursing Service, the Open Engagement, and also provide that, for all personnel enlisting on or after 1st April 2007, the term of their enlistment will run from the date of their attestation, irrespective of their age. For those men who enlisted before 1st April 2007 and those women who enlisted on or after 1st April 1975 and before 1st April 2007, and before the date of their 18th birthday, the term of their enlistment runs from the date of their 18th birthday.

A full regulatory impact assessment has not been produced for this instrument as it has no impact on the costs of business.
