

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM TO
THE REGULATION OF INVESTIGATORY POWERS (COVERT HUMAN INTELLIGENCE SOURCES: CODE OF PRACTICE) ORDER 2014

2014 No. 3119

1. This explanatory memorandum has been prepared by the Home Department and is laid before Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.

2. Purpose of the instrument

2.1 The purpose of this Order is to bring into force a revised code of practice relating to the conduct and the use of covert human intelligence sources by public authorities under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA'). The revised code will replace the previous version.

3. Matters of special interest to the Joint committee on Statutory Instruments

3.1 None.

4. Legislative Context

4.1 Section 71 of RIPA requires the Secretary of State to issue codes of practice relating to the exercise and performance of the powers and duties conferred or imposed by or under Part II of RIPA. This Order brings into force the code of practice prepared under section 71 relating to the conduct and the use of covert human intelligence sources under Part II of that Act. The Order is subject to the affirmative resolution procedure and will come into force 21 days after the date on which the Order is made.

5. Territorial Extent and Application

5.1 This instrument applies to all of the United Kingdom. Some of the guidance set out in the Code of Practice applies only to England and Wales. Where there are limits on application to Scotland or Northern Ireland (or alternative domestic provision), this is clearly stated in the Code of Practice.

6. European Convention on Human Rights

6.1 Rt. Hon. Mike Penning MP, Minister of State for the Home Department has made the following statement regarding Human Rights:

‘In my view the provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Covert Human Intelligence Sources: Code of Practice) Order 2014 are compatible with the Convention rights.’

7. Policy Background

7.1 The use of covert human intelligence sources by public authorities is sometimes necessary to ensure effective investigation and enforcement of the law. RIPA requires that public authorities seeking to use a covert human intelligence source, follow a clear authorisation process prior to deployment. Authorisations granted under Part II of RIPA are subject to all the existing safeguards considered necessary by Parliament to ensure that investigatory powers are exercised compatibly with the ECHR. In particular, the substantive protections of Article 8 (right to respect for private and family life) are guaranteed by the express terms of RIPA which only permit the exercise of the Part II powers if the tests of necessity, proportionality and legitimate aim are satisfied.

7.2 The revised code of practice will help ensure that the tests of necessity and proportionality are better understood by public authorities and applied lawfully and consistently to applications concerning the use and conduct of covert human intelligence sources.

7.3 In addition, the revised code provides guidance in relation to the enhanced authorisation procedure which is now required in the following circumstances:

- a) The Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Covert Human Intelligence Sources: Relevant Sources) Order 2013 requires that certain types of CHIS are the subject of enhanced authorisation arrangements. The measures apply to sources who hold an office, rank or position in the law enforcement agencies listed and are deployed for particular purposes. They are in line with the recommendations of HM Inspectorate of Constabulary made in 2012, following the examination of the deployment of a particular former police undercover officer but whose findings are applicable to any law enforcement organisation who use undercover officers.
- b) The Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 requires that local authorities seek judicial approval for their use of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000.

7.4 The revised Code of Practice also provides clarity on the following issues:

- a) When a ‘relevant source’ is deployed to establish their ‘legend’/ build up their cover profile, an authorisation must be sought under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 if the activity will interfere with an individual’s Article 8 rights.

- b) Any Police Officer deployed as a ‘relevant source’ in England and Wales will continue to uphold the principles and standards of professional behaviour set out in the College of Policing Code of Ethics.

7.5 In addition, a number of technical changes have been made throughout the document to reflect issues raised by practitioners and reflect best practice.

8. Consultation outcome

8.1 A public consultation, which took place from 13 February to 27 March 2014, invited views on the revised code of practice. A number of organisations and agencies which rely on the powers in the course of their duties suggested amendments to improve the quality, clarity and accuracy of the codes. The Department considered all of the responses to the consultation and many of the suggestions have been adopted into the final draft Code of Practice. The majority of responses also suggested that reference should be made in the Code of Practice to a prohibition on undercover officers from engaging in sexual activity in the course of their duty. This suggestion is reflected in the decision to include reference to the requirement that Police Officers in England and Wales must uphold the College of Policing Code of Ethics.

9. Guidance

9.1 The code will be supplemented by guidance provided by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners and the Intelligence Services Commissioner, who have the statutory responsibilities to inspect and oversee the use by relevant public authorities of the covert techniques covered by the code.

10. Impact

10.1 The impact on business, charities or voluntary bodies is nil.

10.2 An Impact Assessment has not been prepared for this instrument.

11. Regulating small business

11.1 The legislation applies only to public authorities.

12. Monitoring & review

12.1 The Government will keep under review the operation of this legislation, including:

- a) through the independent inspection and oversight by the Chief Surveillance Commissioner; and
- b) through the Investigatory Powers Tribunal which is made up of senior members of the judiciary, is independent of Government and has full powers to investigate and determine any proceedings or complaints falling within its jurisdiction.
