TRANSPOSITION NOTE

Directive 2014/59/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 May 2014 establishing a framework for the recovery and resolution of credit institutions and investments firms and amending Council Directive 82/891/EEC, and Directives 2001/24/EC, 2002/47/EC, 2004/25/EC, 2005/56/EC, 2007/36/EC, 2011/35/EU, 2012/30/EU and 2013/36/EU, and Regulations (EU) No 1093/2010 and (EU) No 648/2012, of the European Parliament and of the Council

This draft Transposition Note has been prepared by HM Treasury. The table below sets out the main elements of the UK's implementation of the Directive.

The Directive establishes a European framework for the recovery and resolution of banks and large investment firms and in large part reflects the Financial Stability Board's international standard for effective resolution regimes.

The Directive sets out the roles and responsibilities for banks and large investment firms, supervisors and resolution authorities prior to resolution (recovery and resolution planning), as a firm begins to weaken (early intervention tools) and in resolution (resolution tools). It also sets out a framework for cooperation between Member States so that they may plan for and manage the failure of banks and large investment firms that operate across borders within the EU. The Directive also provides for cooperation with resolution authorities outside the EU.

The Directive equips resolution authorities with resolution tools and powers so that they may take steps to preserve critical functions of a bank or investment firm in resolution and impose losses on the existing holders of its liabilities. It also sets out the steps that must be taken post-resolution – including the restructuring of banks and investment firms and providing compensation to creditors where they have been treated worse in resolution than they would have been had the bank or investment firm been put into insolvency.

Some provisions of the Directive are already given effect in the UK by:

- existing primary and secondary legislation;
- rules made by the Prudential Regulation Authority under sections 137G, 137T and 192J of FSMA;
- rules made by the Financial Conduct Authority under sections 137A, 137T, 139A and 192J of FSMA; and
- the Special Resolution Regime Code of Practice issued in accordance with sections 5 and 6 of the Banking Act 2009.

However, changes are needed to give full effect to the Directive. The Directive is being implemented through 6 statutory instruments; changes to the PRA and FCA Rules; and amendments to the Special Resolution Regime Code of Practice which HM Treasury plans to publish in December 2014.

The 6 statutory instruments covered in this transposition note are as follows:

- The Bank Recovery and Resolution Order 2014
- The Bank Recovery and Resolution (No. 2) Order 2014
- The Bank and Building Societies (Depositor Preference and Priorities) Order 2014

- The Banking Act 2009 (Mandatory Compensation Arrangements Following Bail-in) Regulations 2014
- The Banking Act 2009 (Restriction of Special Bail-in Provision etc.) Order 2014
- The Building Societies (Bail-in) Order 2014

Generally, the approach taken in these instruments has not been to copy-out the relevant provisions of the Directive. Copying out articles from the Directive would have made it unclear as to the precise scope of provisions and the precise roles and responsibilities of those to whom the Directive needs to apply.

These instruments do what is necessary to implement the main provisions of the Directive, including making consequential changes to domestic legislation to ensure its coherence in the area to which they apply. They leave in place existing domestic legislation that goes beyond what the EU requires in this minimum harmonising directive. The UK had already legislated (starting in 2008, with the recent financial crisis) to protect financial stability
